IU-13 Supports Student Learning at OMPH

OMPH School is very blessed to have the support of IU-13 which provides our students with many special support services.

Michelle Stephens, a Reading Specialist/Math Instructor for Lancaster-Lebanon IU-13, is now in her ninth year teaching reading and math intervention at Our Mother of Perpetual Help. In addition to teaching reading and math, Mrs. Stephens conducts reading and math testing for the school in September, January, and May. She collaborates with teachers to determine students' needs and course of instruction. She has said she thoroughly enjoys working with the teachers and students at OMPH and "is glad to be a part of such a wonderful school community."

Emily Good is the Lancaster Lebanon IU-13 school counselor at OMPH. She shared she "is very excited to be starting her fourth year at OMPH and having the opportunity to work with such wonderful students and families again this year!" As the school counselor, Mrs. Good supports every child in developing their best possible self by working in all of the classrooms on a regular basis to teach social and emotional skills. She is also available for individual counseling to help meet academic, emotional and social needs as they relate to the classroom setting. She supports students in small group settings as well, where children work together with other students experiencing similar situations or difficulties. She is often seen with her stuffed dog named Brownie, who is a favorite friend of students!

Katelyn Falk, a speech-language pathologist for the past six years, just began working for the IU-13 this school year in various schools all around Lancaster County. Mrs. Falk works with students on articulation skills, language skills (such as grammar), fluency and voice concerns. In her other schools she also supports students in Autistic Support and Multiple Disabilities classrooms. Mrs. Falk said she has enjoyed getting to know the students and staff at OMPH and appreciates the warm welcome!
